>commitments during his stay in Australia, from your message I am not sure >that you realise what those commitments are. Colin, in collaboration with >some other Canberran Librarians, has organised for Brewster to present a >public lecture on the topic he has previously used -- "Libraries of Silicon >and Fibre Optics" -- at 11.30 - 12.45 on the Tuesday 13 April. Details as >appended below.

>people who have a strong interest in the lecture topic.
>I trust this confirmation does not conflict with anything you and Brewster

Australian Library and Information Association

... STOP PRESS ...

Electronic scholarly communication: The library response.

The Australian Library and Information Association invites you to a conference on Electronic scholarly communication: The library response, to be held in Sydney on 17 April 1993. This one day conference will draw on the international speakers from the event sponsored by the Department of Employment, Education and Training and the Australian Academies (Changes in scholarly communication: Australia and the electronic library) to be held in Canberra in April, 1993.

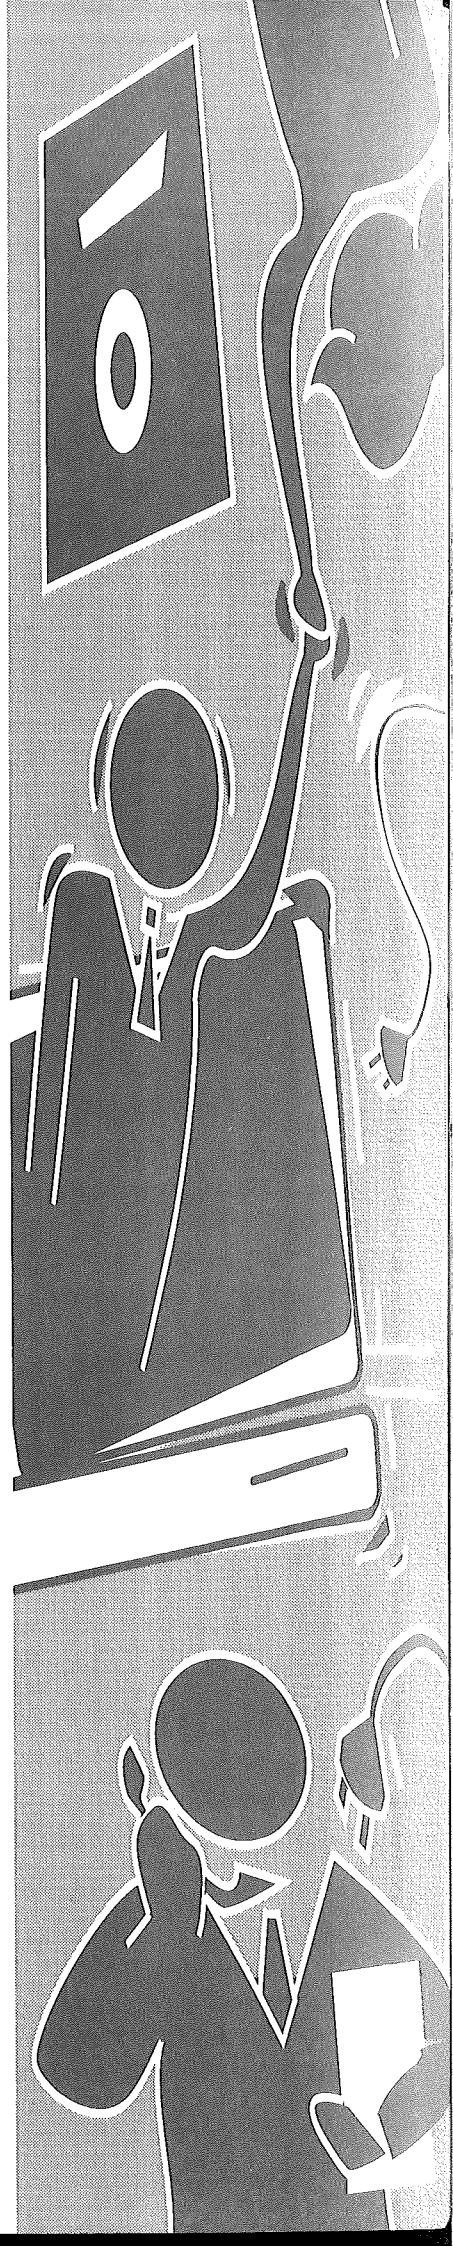

The Canberra-based invitation only conference has generated enormous interest in the Australian library community. As representation from the library sector will be limited at that event, the Association has harnessed the opportunity to stage a more compact version of the program in Sydney. The program will run from 9.30am to 4.30pm on the Saturday, and be preceded by a conference dinner on the Friday night.

The Sydney-based conference will have a slight shift in focus from the Canberra event and will include two panel sessions. The purpose of the panel sessions is to swing the program more directly towards the issues facing the library and information industry. The morning session will concentrate on electronic services and products and matching client expectations to service; the afternoon session will explore the economics of supply and demand and the necessary resources shift, or more bluntly put, "who foots the bill?". A copy of the program follows. You will see from this that an effort has been made to ensure representation from sectors that will have to deal intimately with electronic communication, including authors, publishers and administrators.

The venue for the conference will be Parliament House, Macquarie Street, Sydney. The pre-conference dinner on the Friday night will also be staged at Parliament House and is sponsored by The Hon. Kevin Rozzoli, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, NSW Parliament.

The issues to be addressed at this conference have enormous implications for the library community and organisations in the business of information exchange. The Association is conscious of its responsibility to provide members and colleagues with a forum to enable the issues and ideas to be presented and discussed.

Cost for the Sydney event will be $145 for ALIA members ($200 for non-members). Additional dinner only tickets can be purchased for $50. Saturday only registration is $95 ($150 for non-members). Reserve your place now by completing the attached registration form. Inquires should be directed to the project co-ordinator, Jo-anne Fuller, on (02) 906 6000.
